Dr. Caminade specializes in the economic analysis of platform and competition issues in the US and EU. She has submitted multiple antitrust expert reports and testified multiple times as an expert witness. Dr. Caminade has extensive experience working on behalf of digital platforms and technology companies on litigation, investigative, and regulatory issues, including competition and worker misclassification matters. She has also conducted, authored, or supervised dozens of economic impact studies and multiple white papers. Additionally, Dr. Caminade has conducted analyses of competition issues across a range of industries. In antitrust matters, including horizontal and vertical mergers, she has supported experts on behalf of plaintiffs, defendants, and agencies such as the DOJ and FTC. Dr. Caminade has taught competition economics at the undergraduate level in the economics department at Dartmouth College. She has written about and discussed antitrust issues in the digital economy and in health care markets, occupational licensing, two-sided platforms, and interim measures in antitrust investigations. Her papers have appeared in the Journal of Competition Law & Economics and ABA's The Antitrust Source. She was a speaker at a competition roundtable organized by the OECD and at the ABA Antitrust Law Section Spring Meeting. Dr. Caminade serves as vice-chair of the Media and Technology Committee of the ABA Antitrust Law Section.
